PREFACE

LONG before publication of the Catalog of Books Represented by Library of Congress Printed Cards (to July 31, 1942) had been completed by Edwards Brothers, it had become a question of national interest how this progressive venture in American bibliography might best be continued. One obvious solution suggested was the publication of supplementary volumes every few years. Mr. H. W. Wilson proposed an alternative method to the Library of Congress and, later (1944), to the Association of Research Libraries, namely, that the continuation take the form of a cumulative catalog which would relieve the depository libraries of the necessity for maintaining their depository L.C. Catalogs. Under the chairmanship of Dr. Robert A. Miller of the Indiana University Library, a committee established by the A.R.L. undertook to study this proposal and inquired of all American libraries maintaining catalogs of Library of Congress cards whether a cumulative catalog would offer an adequate substitute. The vote of the libraries circularized at this juncture was inconclusive.

In March, 1946, Mr. Wilson, whose admirable zeal in the matter had not weakened, issued his persuasive pamphlet, A Proposed Plan for Printing Library of Congress Cards in Cumulative Book Form giving the case for the publication of weekly supplements which would be "cumulated at the end of the second and last week of each month and the monthly numbers and annual volumes cumulated on a plan similar to that of the Cumulative Book Index . . ." A questionnaire accompanying the pamphlet inquired into the potential support for such a cumulative catalog through subscription and requested opinions as to the value of a cumulative catalog for reference work and cataloging. The response, from several hundred libraries, was favorable in all three respects.

The A.R.L. and the Library of Congress meanwhile had been considering the advisability of having Edwards Brothers publish a 4½ or 5½ year supplement to the Catalog of Books Represented by Library of Congress Printed Cards and at the June, 1946, meeting of the A.R.L. an affirmative vote was taken on this issue. At the same time, the Library of Congress had been studying the many technical and financial problems involved in the publication of a cumulative catalog and the discontinuance of its card depository system and a decision was reached finally to undertake, through the Government Printing Office, a monthly book catalog with quarterly and annual cumulations. The technique devised called for the reproduction of a special edition of the printed cards by photolithography and the employment of a specially designed aligning device. The appearance of the first issue of the Library of Congress Cumulative Catalog, January, 1947, offered assurance enough as to the continuance of the convenient record of L.C. cataloged titles from that date onward and the plans for the publication of the supplement to the Catalog of Books Represented by Library of Congress Cards insured that there would be no lacuna in that record.

In the fall of 1947 a further decision was made to expand the proposed supplement by the inclusion of the cards printed during 1947 and to forego the annual volume of the Cumulative Catalog for that year. The reason underlying this change was the Library's desire to maintain uniformity of entry in the Cumulative Catalog. It was anticipated that the cards printed during 1947, since they did not reflect certain typographic changes adopted January 1, 1948, nor (for the first half of 1947) the effects of the new descriptive cataloging code adopted tentatively by the Library of Congress in July, 1947, would vary markedly in all future cumulations from the cards printed later. A final expansion of the supplement resulted from the decision to include approximately 26,000 anonymous and pseudonymous entries. These have been filed by title and have a line drawn through the author heading.

Since the appearance of the 167 volumes of the Catalog of Books Represented by Library of Congress Printed Cards the one serious criticism has been with regard to the size of the type used. The question of employing a larger type size for the supplement, thereby necessitating an increase in the size and cost of the volumes was put to a vote by Edwards Brothers at the request of A.R.L. The results demonstrated that the majority of libraries were compelled to choose economy over convenience of use and the same type size has been employed as in the original volumes.

This account should not be closed without mention of the understanding interest and cooperation of Dr. William Warner Bishop, Chairman of the A.R.L. Committee on Publication of the Library of Congress Catalog of Printed Cards since its inception, and to his fellow committee members who, acting for A.R.L. in its sponsorship of this supplement, have contributed to the shaping of another vital bibliographic aid to American scholarship and American Libraries.

Académie vétérinaire de France, Paris.

Founded 1844 as Société vétérinaire du département de la Seine. The society was authorized by a decree of the minister of agriculture and commerce on Nov. 24, 1845 to take the name Société centrale de médecine vétérinaire. A second ministerial decree, Nov. 8, 1848, gave the society the name Société nationale et centrale de médecine vétérinaire which was changed to Société impériale et centrale de médecine vétérinaire by decision of the minister of state and the emperor, Apr. 13, 1853. By decree of the president of the republic, Apr. 16, 1875, the society was again called Société centrale de médecine vétérinaire. The name was changed to Académie vétérinaire de France by decree of Jan. 12, 1903.

Atti e memorie. nuova ser., v. 1-1884/85-Padova, 1885-19

v. in illus., plates (part fold.) diagrs. 24".

Formed by the union of its Nuovi saggi and its Rivista periodica dei lavori, and called "nuova serie." Volumes for 1884/85-1897/98 numbered "anno" 286-290, respectively; 1898/99, "anno" 806. The numbers refer to the date of founding of the academy, the discrepancy being explained by the use of the date of founding of a predecessor of the academy.
